YELLOWKNIFE, Northwest Territories, Jan. 25 (AP).—The del search for radiation contemination from a fallen Soviet spy cellite has been expanded into U.S. territoy north of Chicago, but o radioactivity has been detected so far, Canadian officials said spokesman said this morning that the search did not include U.S. territory. No reason was immediately available for the discrepancy in reports.

The search for possible debris from the satellite, which carried 110 pounds of enriched Unanium 235, as well as for possible radiation contamination, was concer trated over an unpopulated region east of Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories. A Canadian armed forces nnclear response team checked the streets of this nearby town with geiger counters and "the results were zero," said Capt. John Lyne, the group's leader.

Radiation Cloud Warning In West Germany, Prof. Heinz Kaminski, director of a private institute for space research at Bochum, said the satellite must have left a radiation cloud about 200 miles long at an altitude of 30 to 40 miles, although so far no such cloud has been Asked why he thought such a cloud may have formed, Prof. Kaminski—a well-known scientist often quoted in the West German press on space matters—said: "With every re-entering lof a safellitel and consequent [of a satellite] and consequent

Blast Also Slays Wife; Gunmen Flee Bomb Kills Barcelona Ex-Mayor

BARCELONA, Jan. 25 (Reuters).-The former mayor of Barcelona, Joaquin Viola Sauret, and his wife were killed today when a bomb strapped to his chest by four intruders apparently exploded prematurely.

an forced their way at gunpoint into Mr. Viola's apartment in central Barcelona, strapped the bomb to his chest and handed him a note demanding an undisclosed amount of ransom to be paid before he would be told how to remove the bomb.

The bomb blew off the bead of the 64-year-old conservative poll-tician and fatally injured his wife, Montserrat, 58.

One of the gunmen fled from the apartment with blood streaming from his face.

The attack came despite reinforced police patrols in Spain's major cities in the face of threats by urban guerrillas to step up their bombing campaign.

Mr. Viola was a member of the Spanish parliament and of the Council of the Realm, appointed by Francisco Franco, and was appointed mayor of Barcelona in 1975 a month before Franco's death. He was in office during a strike of firemen and policemen in 1976 and resigned last year after being criticized by labor organizations. He ran as an independent for parliament last June, seeking a Senate seat, but

Israel's Return To Cairo Talks Expected Soon

Sadat Reports Quiet Contacts

CAIRO, Jan. 25 (AP).-President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said today that serious negotiations were going on behind the scenes to resume the Israeli-Egyptian

Mr. Sadat, interviewed after he attended a ceremony honoring Egyptian police, said in answer to a question, "Yes, I can say serious negotiations and, I mean, an exchange of views."

The Egyptian leader said that he did not know when formal talks might resume, but said, "I am in constant contact with Pres-ident Carter." Mr. Sadat said that he had sent messages to Mr. Carter through U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who visited bere last week, and U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Hermann Eilts.

Mr. Sadat met with Mr. Eilts and said that the ambassador had brought Mr. Carter's answer to the messages. "Let us wait some time and then let us reveal what was in these messages." Mr. Sadat said.

Israeli Declaration

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said that Israel had drafted a declaration of principles to serve as a basis for Middle East peace and was awaiting an Egyptian response. The answer was ex-pected to be relayed through U.S. diplomatic charmels.

As an indication that the paralysis in the peace process was ending, Mr. Sadat said that U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton would arrive from Israel "in a few days" to meet with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel. "But nothing more," Mr. Sadat added, indicating that the threeway formal negotiations would not resume immediately.

Mr. Sadat said "not yet" when asked if he knew when the talks would resume, a moratorium on public comment while behind-the-scenes talks were held, Mr. Sadat said, "Well, I have no objections at all to ving a quiet period in which all parties concerned re-evaluate their position."

Mr. Sadat also said be had received no response from the United States on his recent requests for U.S. arms.

In a speech to Parliament Saturday, Mr. Sedat said that the U.S. policy of supplying Israel with a vast quantity of arms prompted Israel to drag its feet in negotiations. He said that he had sent a request through Mr. Vance for similar weapons.

Decision Seen Likely Sunday

JERUSALEM, Jan. 25 (NYT). Government officials said today that the Israeli Cabinet would probably decide by Sunday to resume the military committee talks with the Egyptians in

The military committee talks. which were held in Egypt for several days, are headed by the Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and his Egyptian counterpart, Gen. Mohammed Abdel-Ghany Gamasy. They were scheduled to resume last week but were postponed when Egyptian President Anwar Sadat abruptly withdrew the Egyptian delegation from political talks in Jerusalem

The political talks at the foreign minister level were the more important of the two in the Egyptian-Israeli peace efforts. But since the withdrawai by Mr. Sadat, the military committee has taken on an added importance as a mechanism for the two disputing sides to try to revive their delicate contacts. On Sunday the Cabinet decided unanimously not to send Mr. Weizman and his aldes back to Cairo for the time being because

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 25 (UPI).-Prime Minister John Vorster to-day reshuffled his 18-man Cabinet, giving the Department of Bantu (black) Affairs to his heir-apparent, Connie Mulder, with a mandate to change the portfolio's controversial name. Mr. Vorster at the same time promised "numerous improve-ments" in black education—a policy currently in disarray with many thousands of black students boycotting classes in protest of superior conditions for white

The Prime Minister made few other changes to an essentially conservative, hard-line Cabinet and left the much-criticized Police and Justice Minister James Kruger in his job despite his handling of the aftermath of the prison death of black nationalist Steve Biko.

Smith Says Rhodesia Accord May Be Ready Within Weeks

Smith predicted today that broad agreement with black leaders on a majority-rule settlement might be reached in a few weeks and he expressed confidence that it ultimately would win recognition from the West. But he said that surge in terrorism by black nationalist guerrillas fighting his white-minority government could be expected.

Mr. Smith disappointed observers who had expected him to amounce a breakthrough in the talks he is holding with three black politicians. The Prime Minister accused Britain, still seen by hlack nationalists as the final arbiter of Rhodesia's constitutional future as its former colonial administrator, of seeking an "unholy alliance" with two externally based guerrilla move-ments fighting in Rhodesia.

First Conference

He was referring to planned meetings between British Foreign Secretary David Owen on Malta with the leaders of the Patriotic Front, Joshus Nkomo and Robert

Mr. Smith, 58, holding his first news conference since convening the internal settlement talks ear ly last month, seemed annoyed at questions on censorship rules and a controversial amnesty policy for guerrilles.

To a question about why "even very limited discussion of such public interest was being stifled by censorshp," the Prime Minister replied.

we are at war. I'm surprised that you seem to be so little aware of that that every day Rhodesians are being killed. Any country in past history which has been at war has done exactly the same as is being done here in Rhodesia."

Mr. Smith also said that there was more freedom in Rhodesia. than in most countries in Africa. Asked how near he thinks the government and the three black leaders negotiating with him-Bishop Abel Musorews, the Rev. Ndoabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau-were to reaching a settlement in broad principles, Mr. Smith said, "... about as near now as we have been in the last two weeks. We could go on for another few weeks. On the other hand, it might be less." Speculation about a breakthrough was fueled by a meeting Mr. Smith held with the three black politicisms at his residence

He opened the press conference with the attack on the British. He said that the British always had insisted that a settlement should be put to a test of acceptability among Rhodesians. Now, he said. Palestinians Get Big Arms Cargoe

BEIRUT, Jan. 25 (NYT).— Lebanese Christian leaders said today that arms have been pouring into the ancient Mediterranean port of Tyre for the Palestinian guerrillas. Camille Chamoun, a former president of Lebanon who heads the rightist Christian political coalition known as "the Lebanese Front" said that he possessed information that ships allegedly have unloaded weapons at Tyre this week, Mr. Chamoun met today with President Elias Sarkis and was reported to have raised the matter with him.

Dutch Reject Appeal by Agee, Confirm Order of His Expulsion

THE HAGUE, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Dutch government today confirmed an expulsion order against Philip Agee but said that the former CIA agent will be given a reasonable period of time to make arrangements to leave the Netherlands. The move followed rejection of an appeal against the order by the 42-year-old American, regarded by the Dutch as a threat to public order and national security. Announcing the decision, the Justice Ministry said in a communique that Etherta Haars, state secretary for justice ruled that it was not in the interests of the Netherlands for

Mr. Ages to remain in the country.

The reasons behind his expulsion have not been specified by the government and the communique did not elaborate. The decision to expel Mr. Agee was in line with recom-mendations made by a special Aliens' Department Advisory Commission which heard his appeal, the communiqué said It added that there were no humanitarian grounds to prevent the former agent from being expelled.

"Mr. Agee himself told the Advisory Commission he plans to return aventually to his country of origin," the communique said. Within the last eight months, Mr. Agee also has been ordered out of Britain and France for security reasons and West Germany refused him entry.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 25 (NYT).— lowing fiscal year would be The head of the U.S. foreign aid higher still. The appropriation of the $60 million, which has not yet been spent, marks the resumption of conomic aid to India after a hiatus dating to the 1971 war between India and Pakistan and the Nixon administration's celebrated "tilt" toward Pakistan. In the years that followed, the relationship also was soured by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's suspension of civil liberties. But as President Carter pointed out during his visit to New Delhi early this month, India's reaffirmation of democracy in the election here last year provided the basis for a sharp improvement in the relationship. Mr. Gilligan said that the new foreign aid program would concentrate on rural areas, with assistance in such areas as grain storage and trrigation. Within the next few weeks, a team of experts is coming from the United States "to carry out more detailed discussions to determine how the United States might best play a role" in the Indian government's development plans, he

In the three decades since India became independent, U.S. aid to the country has come to $10 billion. But many Indians have considered much of it a disservice, because of the feeling of dependency the aid often built up, as well as accumulating burdens of debt. The presence in the 1960s of what was at times almost a parallel government of U.S. aid experts stationed in New Delhi is now looked upon by both governments as a mistake.

There is absolutely no possibility that the United States is ever going to run the kinds of programs which we did in former years, with very large overseas missions and that sort of thing. Mr. Gilligan sald here today. "That's just not in the hall game anymore. The Congress wouldn't tolerate it even if we wanted to do it and we don't want to do it."

'Smoky' Test Called 'Dirtiest'

3 Scientists See Cancer Link In U.S. Atom-Blast Exposure

By Walter Pincus

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (WP). to hear there were troops in the Three scientists told a House subcommittee yesterday that they believe there was a relationship between low-level radiation received by servicemen at a Nevada nuclear test site 20 years ago and their subsequent development of leukemia.

The three testified on the first day of hearings by the House health and environment s mitee on Smoky, a 45-kilton nuclear test explosion.

To date, 6 of 2,235 soldiers at Smoky have been discovered to have developed leukemia, a cancer of the blood that has been linked to high radiation

It was learned last night that two additional cancer cases have been found and that information was to be presented to the subcommittee today.

Dirtiest of Tests' Dr. Karl Morgan, who at the time of Smoky was director of health physics at the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge laboratory, told the subcommittee that his staff chief at the test described it "as the dirtiest of the tests we covered."

Dr. Morgan said that his men were unable to retrieve scientific measuring equipment after Smoky because of the residual contam-

"There is no question there was a great deal of fallout from the weapon," Dr. Morgan said.

"I was frightened and appalled

In answer to a question from the subcommittee's ranking Republican, Rep. Tim Carter of Kentucky, Dr. Morgan said that he had "no doubt whatever" that radiation at Smoky caused the leukemia now found in veterans of the shot.

To date, the Army has denied claims that radiation from Smoky caused the leukemla now found in veterans of the test.

Another scientist. Dr. Martin Sperling of San Diego, Calif., sald that he had done studies and reconstructions of the Smoky hlast in order-20 years later-to re-construct the amounts of radiation received by the soldiers at the test site.

Dr. Sperling told the subcommittee that he concluded that a soldier could bave inhaled almost 60 times more radiation than was shown on a film badge. At the 1957 test, film badges were the prime device used to record an individual's radiation exposure.

The third witness, Dr. Arthur Tamplan, worked for many years at the AEC's vivermore labora-tories. He agreed with Dr. Morgan that radiation from the tests caused later cancers

Of course, Europear is as efficient as the other major car rental companies (actually, our Super Service credit card is the simplest and the quickest). Our models are just as new. But, in addition, you will find that both our cars and our customers are looked after with a kind of attention that is distinctively European. Small details? Maybe, But they helped Europear become one of the largest systems in today's world of car rental.

Big German Engine That Won't

now confirmed a reversal of policy that bodes ill for the stability of the West. Hints have come from other West German officials before. But now, in his state of the union address to the Bundestag. Schmidt himself has openly rejected the argument that the West German economic locomotive should pull the weaker economies of Europe out of their worst recession since the 1930s. He indicated that no further stimulus to internal demand was feasible and that West Germany's dependence on export markets for the sale of almost 30 per cent of its gross national product made a higher growth rate impossible during a period of lagging international trade.

The implications are deeply disturbing. Until now. Bonn has accepted the thesis. advanced by Washington and the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development that the United States West Germany and Japan, with 60 per cent of the non-Communist industrial world's production, have a special responsibility to pull the rest of the world into faster recovery. Schmidt committed himself at the sevennation economic summit in London last May to take added measures, if necessary, to meet Bonn's own growth target of 5 per cent. Tax outs were adopted—but too late, and the West German economy grew only 2.4 per cent

Now there is a change. Official projections of the 1978 growth rate, due soon, are expected to be about 3 1/2 per cent-not much higher than the 3 1/4 per cent the OECD forecast last month, a forecast the West Germans earlier protested as too low. but now argue is adequate.

Has Bonn decided to "go it alone"? It is hard to believe. Unemployment in West Germany is higher than it has been in decades and is rising, along with the discon-

Chancellor Schmidt of West Germany has tent of Schmidt's trade union followers. Schmidt knows that West Germany cannot prosper while the cest of West Europe faces a 2-per-cent growth rate this year and increases in already severe unemployment.

There was an intriguing phrase in Schmidt's address that warrants exploration. West Germany, he said, could not pull the world out of recession, adding, "Together with others this can be done but not on our own."

Schmidt's allies must now ask what this means. Clearly, he does not want faster expansion in the United States; Bonn has complained that U.S. growth and oil imports have brought a $30-billion trade deficit and a decline of the dollar that he wants halted. Japan has made new-presumably firmercommitments to a faster growth rate. Britain, with North Sea oil money coming in. has taken initial expansionary moves. But France, Italy and most of the smaller European countries are running oil trade deficits and have been awaiting recovery of their West German market. Adequate mediumterm financing of these deficits might permit a joint move by all the industrial countries to stimulate growth simultaneously. Would that provide enough advance assurance of an increase in West German exports for Bonn to move? * * *

The seven-nation economic summit, meeting twice a year, was supposed to coordinate this kind of economic strategy. But to avoid pressure, Schmidt has insisted on postboning the next meeting of the seven until July, 14 months after the last. That is too long to wait. A new dialogue must be opened and only President Carter can open it. Schmidt's European allies have tried and failed. The first move might be to send a personal emissary to Bonn who can explore Schmidt's intriguing hint and get West Germany's steam up again.

B. Hunt jr. to reduce the sentences of the Wilmington 10 strikes us as an unsatisfactory solution. Compelling arguments existed for a more generous approach, based on the considerable amount of evidence that, as the Justice Department has noted, "many irregularities" cropped up in the prosecution and trials of the group. In choosing to reduce the sentences of nine black men (one of the group, a white woman, has been paroled), Gov. Hunt conceded that the original sentences for arson and conspiracy were excessive. That is something, at least. But even here, questions are raised. The sentence of Ben Chavis, an official in the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice, was reduced from one of 25 to 29 years to one of 17 to 21 years. Given such punishment for a first offense by someone with no violent crimes on his record, it can be argued that Gov. Hunt only chipped away at the excess rather than removed it.

The governor, who found himself at the center of a storm he didn't create, has expressed the hope that his decision would put things to rest. That is unlikely to happen, at least so far as public discussion is concerned. Few of the doubts that persisted long before Gov. Hunt involved himself anpear to have been resolved. Questions of witness reliability—recantations have been made by prosecution witnesses, and now there is a recantation of a recantation-and such irregularities as a witness receiving gifts from the prosecutor were not explained

The decision of North Carolina Gov. James away by the governor's assertion that "there was a fair trial," Gov. Hunt has alluded to "outside" criticism of his state's system of justice, but it has been the inside criticism that has often been the sharpest and most telling. For although the case has now become something of an international issue, questions about its fairness were originally raised by the reporting and commentary of several North Carolina newspapers.

North Carolina would have been better served if Gov. Hunt had dealt forthrightly with the claims that the trial and prosecution were unfair. But he didn't. Because he chose to avoid a substantive discussion, his decision to reduce the sentences-rather than pardon the group or commute the sentences to time already served—is likely to introduce a new question: Why wasn't the issue of possible unfairness dealt with fully in the governor's exchange with the public? It it had been, little of the outcry following the speech—not merely from black leaders within North Carolina but also from several members of Congress, as well as the leadership of the United Church of Christ-would have much validity. As it is, valid claims persist that this group was railroaded.

It may well turn out that by avoiding the opportunity to address those claims, the governor has fanned the fire, not doused it. At the least, a commutation of the sentences to time already served would have allowed the doubts to be discussed in a much less bitter atmosphere.

The Neutron Warhead

Russia's great superiority over NATO in conventional forces, in addition to being an ever-growing military threat, is also designed for political blackmail. A brazen example is the personal letter that Mr. Brezhnev has sent to the heads of NATO governments warning them against the neutron warhead, which America has designed specifically as a tactical nuclear weapon for European defense. Deployment of this weapon, he says, would endanger "detente" and place a strain on East-West relations.

The neutron weapon, which kills by greatly enhanced and temporary radiation, but has minimal heat and blast effects, offers a solution to one of Europe's greatest defense problems: How to stop Russian tank armies advancing through West Germany without causing massive collateral civilian casualties and damage . . . The people killed would be Russian troops in steel vehicles, which are particularly vulnerable to the radiation, whereas civilians in surviving brick and mortar structures, which are resistant to it, would be protected . . .

It is a pity that NATO governments withheld news of Mr. Brezhnev's threat for three weeks until the German newspaper Die Welt got hold of it. They should advise him to cut down his tank armies and scrap his new multi-headed mobile rocket targeted on Europe with a "dirty" charge 2,000 times as big as the neutron bomb.

ONDON,-"Far be it for me to assert that what everybody says must be true. Everybody is. often, as likely to be wrong as right. In the general experience, everybody has been wrong so often and it has taken in most nces such a weary while to find out how wrong that the authority is proved to be falwere small comfort as I read the recently published Amnesty Internetional report on Tanzania. Could it be that the country I love (where I spent my critical age of early 20s), whose leadership is often said to be the wisest and most creative in Africa, is the ing "great anxiety" to Ammesty? Neither was I comforted by the inconsistencies and imadequacies. I found elsewhere in Ammesty reports on other countries. In West Germany, Annesty appeared to have argued in early 1977 for greater in-jail freedom for Bander-Meinhof terrorists to meet together, sleep together, and receive visitors, or as we know now to plot murder. In the United States, at the other extreme, Amnesty seemed cautions to plumb the depths of decades of false imprisoning of blacks for political acts dressed up as eriminal offenses.

Near the Truth

The truth is that on Tanzaola Amnesty is near the troth. I have talked to great admirers of Tanzania like Bishop Trevor Hoddleston, firm friend and counselor of President Julius Nyerere. Yes, he said, Ammesty's information coincided with his own: I have talked to the present Tansacian ambassador to the Court of St. Junes who said he had nothing to add to Ammests's observations: and last I've talked to myself who has heard these reports trickling out for years and has refused to feee up to them. Here then are the warmbellished facts as near as I can get to them: In 1972, Shelkh Abeld Karume.

president of Zanziber, was assessinated. Karume, a tyrant of no mean proportions, ruled Zangiber as an independent fiefdom within the republic of Tangania. This independence had been the price of unity since Nyerene in a masterly stroke persuaded Karume in 1964 that he'd be better off ruling Zensiber as part of Tanzania than as an offshore colony.

After the murder 37 people were found guilty of treason and nearly half of them were sentenced to death. They appealed. The appeal was heard by the Supreme Council of the Airo-Shirazi per-ty, Zensiber's only legalized political party. The attorney general, Wolfgang Dourado, acting as both prosecutor and deferms counsel, requested that the death penalties be commuted. The Appeal Court commuted the penalty for 17 but confirmed it for another seven. That was early last year. The final appeal to the new president, About Jumbe, who is also the vicepresident of Tanzania, is still

Fate of 13

Amnesty is not just protesting the bissars court procedures of Zanziber nor the torture that was an ancillary to the trials. It is concerned with the fate of 13 others in the case who are detained without trial on the mainland (although tried in absentia on Zanzibar).

The best known of these is the Zensibari former Tamanism minister of economic affairs. Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu. Nyerere argues privately that they are being kept in prison on the mainland to save their necks from Zansibari justice. For a while this made some sense. But six years after the murder of Karume it makes less and less. Smuggled letters and other sources of evidence "considered reliable" by Amnesty tell a sad story-'poor diet, lack of qualified medical treatment, restrictions of relatives' visits and all correspondence." Moreover, in the case of Babu, and another prisoner, All Mafudh, they are in solitary confinement. This is not "protective custody."

The Babu imprisonment is not an isolated case. The number of detainees on mainland Tanzania lield in indefinite detention without trial is estimated to be between 1,000 and 1,500.

Included in this number ere 11 members of the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO). In 1976, the Zambie. authorities, concerned with fending within the leadership of this guerrilla group, agrested one faction led by Andreas Shipanga.

The Zambian Appeal Court then issued a writ of habess corpus in Shipanga's favor. In the meanwhile, however, the Zambian enverament had transferred the 11 to Tanzania, apparently to avoid being compelled by the court to release them. These where there is no provision for habeas corpus for people held under the Preventive Detention Promically the government of Zambia, acting under instruc-tions from the Zambian Appeal

Court, requested their return. Tanzenia refused to comply. Nyerere himself is well aware of his own country's failings. In conversation, as I have found him, he can be disarmingly frank about them. But that is not enough. If Tanzania is going to continue to be the leader of those determined to bring about the fall of oppression in white South Africa, Nyerere might recall Shakespeare'e dictum: "Lilies and saking for explanations.

WASHINGTON,-Ten members of the Supreme Soviet, which is not really "supreme" in Moscow but still infinential have been in Washington these last few days expressing their regrets about the decline in U.S.-Soviet relations,

This has been an interesting and maybe even significant event. The Soviet delegation, headed by Boris N. Ponomerev, has talked with the leaders of the Rouse and Senate, and with reporters on the side. They have been unfallingly courteous and even muisble, but somehow they were not able to sense with utilities or congressmen here or even to discuss objectively why Washington and Moscow were mismderstanding one enother.

One reason, I believe is that there is a widening age-gap be-tween the leaders of the Soviet When these visits of the Supreme Soviet started here in Washington. in 1974, Moscow sent aknost precisely the same delegation, he by the same Ponomerev. When the U.S. Congress sent a delegation back in 1975 to Moscow, it was beaded by Hobert Humphrey, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Republican minority leader of the Senate, and speaker Carl Albert of the House -es of them now gone. So a Soviet delegation of old men has been taking to a wholly different generation of U.S.

The Soviet officials have come here with a primary question—they all raise it wherever they go—what is the primary question of world affairs? Isn't it the control of nuclear weapons and the averdance of a nuclear world war? This, they insist, is the presiding question in the knterests of the United States and the Soviet Union, and in the urity of world peace, so why don't we concentrate on that?

Why divide Moscow and Washington over "trumen rights," they ask. Why not agree on the basics and separate this catachymic question of nuclear wer from all these other subsidiary questions in Europe, the Middle Bast, Africa

There have been some really touch arguments with the Soviet delegation here on these issues. and they have the opportunity to argue it out with the secretary of state, with Zoigniew Brzesłuski, the head of the National Security Council and even to philosophize about all this in the homes of U.S. officials. No such thing, of course, could be imagined in Moscow by the Soviet Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Andrei Gromyko, or even by the Soviet Ambassador to Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin. But somehow this dialogue does not seem to be working.

The representatives from Moscow obviously want to have it both ways. They want an agreement on strategic missiles with the United States, particularly on the Ornise missile. They also want the right to build their own missiles and move their own developing navy into the Indian Ocean and establish their power in Ethiopia along the Horn of Africa and in Angola along the oil sealence from the Middle East and challenging Moscow to stop

When the members of the Supreme Soviet relead what they called the "mesto question"—the Officials here have been saying control of nuclear weapons-Braesinski told them quite frankly that they had to choose. They could not get selective agreements with the United States. No progress was really made in these talks between the members of the Supreme Soviet and U.S. officials or the press, for they are all arguing from two different philosophies and two quite different views of history. The Sevicts are really invition the conversation here made little progress toward this end. Our ments, admittedly in a gentler way, but they produce not a single new idea for practical compromise So they will now go on to the Space Center in Houston, and to Disneyhand, but at no time since they've been here have they made any reasonable breakthrough or produced any sense of compromise that would lead the two decisive nuclear powers into a new world order.

There is something rather sad about all this. The hope of these talks between the Someone Soviet and the leaders of the Congress and the executive in Washington was that they might be able to look beyond the contemporary struggles and find some ground for compromise, but they seem merely to have had a tunket and repeated the same old propaganda.

Humphrey

To Israel

WASHINGTON.—The following is the text of a letter from the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey to Israeli Prime Minister Menghem Begin, dated Jan. 11:

Dear Mr. Prime Minister:

I want to take this opportunity to compliment you on your courage and leadership in the current peace initiatives in the Middle East. I also want to pay tribute to the people of Israel who have opened up their arms to President Anwar Sadat in a magnificent gesture of peace and honor.

However, my friend, we cannot let this cup pass from our lips without doing what needs to be done. As you have said on numerous occasions in the past everything is negotiable. As you know, nobody appreciates the concerns Israel has over her security better than I. A reasonable man like President Sada! must also understand security requirements as being a fundamental element of any nation's sovereignty. Above all, our gov ernment understands your security requirements.

This brings me to the issue of the existing Israeli settlement-in the Sinai. I realize these settlements are important within the context of Israel's presensecurity needs. However, there must be some way to work ou: a program for governing these settlements during a transition period to eventual, full Egyptian sovereignty much as there should be a palatable and workabk solution for the West Bank, Ir the case of the latter, maybe what there needs to be is a formula in which we give the Pakes tinians some time to work ou their own difficulties. It is absolutely clear that we are no: accepting an independent and potentially antagonistic Palestinian state, nor, will any or Israel's neighbors. There is at obvious danger in the ultimate political objectives of such as entity. Those who want to see these difficult issues resolved recognize that it is going to take time and "give" on the part of all parties, even beyond existing stated positions.

I write this letter only after giving these matters considerable thought, and I also believe that key members of the American Jewish Community would share my views on these issues. UN Resolution 243 should continue to be the guiding set of principles for a comprehensive Middle East peace. There is no reason at all why we should not fulfill the obligations of Resolution 242, particularly since those obligarity requirements.

These are my views, and I offer them not only as a sincerc. and devoted friend of Israel, but as your good friend as well. : as decoly impre during our meeting in Washing ton. I believe you are the righ man, in the right place, at th right time. Yet, it is time to all parties to show tolerance. : spirit of give-and-take, and com promise while the time is still fresh. We cannot let this op portunity for peace escape on grasp. We must seize the mo ment or we may lose it forever With warm personal regard and deep admiration. -HUBERT HUMPHREY

in the country and that inmates of Nsawam, a medium security prison, are all "criminal de-tainees." But the Bar Association asserts that they are all political detainess and that there are many other such prisoners elsewhere

The question of human rights and civil liberties has become an increasingly burning one as Ghana approaches a March 30 refer-endum on whether the nation is to return to civilian party politics or accept a joint military-civilian union government.

Opponents of Gen. Acheampong's proposed for such a government complain they are having a great deal of trouble arguing their case and that the largely state-controlled news media are heavity slanted against them. In addition, they are upset by the rough tectics being used by the military government's supporters to silence them, apparently with impunity.

A meeting here of professional persons in the opposition last Oct. 12 was broken up by thugs who invaded the Accra Community Center while police stood by and took no action.

Gen. Achesimpong strongly condemned the incident and has since said repeatedly that his gov-ernment will uphold the right of dissenters to speak out openly and freely against the union sovernment plan. But his opponer remain skeptical, pointing to what they claim is a large number of persons imprisoned solely for their political views.

The Bar Association has set up a Human-Rights Committee to defend such detainees and on Dec. 13 obtained a writ of habess corpus from the Accra High Court for the release of 175 of the Nsawam prisoners.

Order Ignored The military government had let 19 of the prisoners go before it decided to ignore the court order and then restrested those who had been released.

The Bar Association maintains that the 175 Chanaians covered by the writ were all taken into custody without any court order or executive decree. Some have been in jail since shortly after

'Porgy and Bess' By Saint Laurent

By Eugenia Sheppard

DARIS, Jan. 25.—Fashion entered a new phase with Yves Saint Leurent's new black-onblack collection, shown to Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Call it the New Orleans look, the island native look or the Harlem look, and you get the picture.

Black models have been stealing the fashion shows for the last few years, but Saint Leurent is the first elegant couture designer to pay a tribute to the chie of the contemporary black girl in clothes that women all over the world will want to wear.

Actually, the collection is a de-lightful fashion visualization of "Forgy and Bess," which is now playing in Paris. The clothes are totally black totally white or black and white with an occasional dash of red.

Among the details of the Bess among the cocky straw bowlers, the cropped jackets, the off-beat-length pants, the exaggeratedly high-heeled shoes. The giant white-dotted black chiffon prints and the black stockings are worn all through the collection, even to a short white chiffon evening dress with an uneven hemline in

Beautiful Wife

Though he gives her less time and much less chic, Saint Laurent hasn't totally forgotten the beautiful wife of the rich plantation owner who is hinted at in Gershwin's song, "Summer Time." She appears in ruffle-edged, flow-printed crepes, sometimes worn under ruffle-edged costs or fackets, looking as if she had just stepped out of bed on a warm

For formal evenings he dresses her in big skirts of stiff black or white silk ottoman skirts with demure blouses and one of his new long, skinny scarf, shawls. This outfit can't hold a candle to the excitement that the Bess look

Saint Laurent's new restaurant suits are sure to liven up the conservative dinner scene this suring. Made of black satin, black wool gabardine or black crepe with a choice of short skirt, long skirt or pants that stop way above the ankle, they come in quietly.

When the lady takes off her jacket, or even just opens it, she is wearing no more than a strap-less black lace bra or, at the most, a somewhat see-through camisole. I can remember when restaurant owners were having heart attacks at women arriving for dinner in pants. Can't you? Pante Suit

Saint Leurent brings back the pants suit in a big way, showing first outfit on the runway was an view of what was to come later. Its lacket had the broadest shoulders since Saint Laurent's famous forties collection, and though the pants were cut like a man's and ended in cuffs, they stopped short several inches above the ankles to show the nylons and fancy shoes. The model was accompanied by a male model wearing a white suit from Saint Laurent's men's wear collection, just to point out how different the two should look.

Besides the all-black and allwhite suits, Saint Leurent likes monotone jackets above inconspicuously striped pants. One of his favorite looks is the white top over the black pants or narrow black skirts that he uses to halance the broad shoulders. The white tops can be blazers, cropped jackets that stop at the waist or even middy-like pullovers. White blouses have longer neckties than last season or else spill ruffles down the front or at the cutis to underscore the feminine look, and sashes also help. The shoes and stockings are always

It's a suit season, and don't forget it. Though Saint Laurent provides a few soft daytime esses, he is as disinterested in the subject as most of his customers are.

He has saved his creative energy to give the evening clothes all that jazz, and do they ever have it. Some of those I especially remember are the strapless black lace sheath under a long, floating black lace coat; the justabove-knee black sequin chemise with yards of black tulle scarf; the bright red chiffen and the carnival black chiffons printed in big, white blobs and wrapped in a whirlwind of dotted bright red and bright green scarves. Saint Laurent uses more chiffon than you might expect but he cuts it with a free hand. It floats and helps to tell the story.

The irregular hemline, always dipping to the back, isn't an exclusive. It turns up in all the collections, but Saint Laurent carries it to greater extremes. His bride, a 12-year-old black girl, wears white cotton, outlined in a double row of deep ruffles the floor behind. His runway star was Munia, a black model from one of the Central American countries who recently anpeared on Ebony's cover.

Saint Laurent himself is in fine form and just finishing the "L'Aigle & Deux Têtes," that will

This would seem to the American housewife like a great deal of travail for arriving at gelatin today, or for the housewife almost anywhere in the world for that matter, since gelatin has more successful than the United Nations in achieving international harmony and is sold almost everywhere in standardized form and quality—six sheets is dissolve in a pint (or half a liter) of water, while the equivalent in powdered form is 1/2 ounce (a tablespoon) or 15 grams, the amount contained in one of the small envelopes in which powdered gelatin is packaged in the United States.

Of the Eliza Leslie advised early 19th-not been obliged to worry about total commercial output, 60 to 65 getting s little lead or arsenic along with her gelatin.

This is a development of our century, but it need not have been. Powdered gelatin existed in the 1840s, even in combination with augar and artificial flavors, the ready-prepared gelatin desserts of today (whose flavoring seems to have been synthetic from the very beginning, but nobody knew about it for half a century because the arts of advertising, merchandising and packaging had not yet gotten under way. When the news of the existence of prepared gelatin did etart getting slow to gain public favor because modern refrigeration had not yet been developed. There was perhaps another potent factor also, the lack of a trademark to run trippingly off the tongue, which in the realm of foodstuffs has often been decisive for success in this case, Jell-O.

The commonest food use of gelath is for desserts, in which case it is usually bought in the form of the already sugared and flavored package which demands of the purchaser only that he or she add water. Unflavored gelatin remains in some demand for soups, gelatin salads (which, personally. I can do without or Gelatin is not obtainable, as many persons believe, from hoofs or horns. When Miss Leslie boiled calves' feet, she derived the gelatin not from the hoofs, but from the scraps of white connective tissue which still clung to them Calves' feet have been forgot--cartilage, sinews, skin and casein (from the protein matrix of bone). Commercial gelatin is per cent goes into foods and the rest into various other uses-it provides the nuter covering for medicines delivered in soft capsules, it makes emulsions for photography, it is used in the painting of fabrics, it is involved in some types of duplicating equipment, like the hectograph, and it is used for clarifying wine or beer—which, via industrial uses, gets us back into the food category again, as does its addition to ice cream as a stabilizer: it prevents the formation of ice Gelatin is largely protein, 85.6

grams of it for each 100 grams of dry gelatin, which generates only 59 calories, so weight watchers might consider it an ideal means for taking nn proteins without being besieged by calories. But there is a catch: natural dry gelatin may have 85.6 grams of protein per 100, but the commercial gelatin you buy has nuly 9.4. and by the time this has been dissolved in the necessary amount of water, you have no more than 1.5 grams of protein per 100 grams of intake. Moreover, much of this minute residue is in-utilizable, for gelatin has a low amino acid content, and amino acids are required to make proteins assimilable. Gelatin is one of the few foods with a negative protein efficiency ratio - which means, to oversimplify a little, that laboratory rats fed on it would lose weight instead of gaining it. Gelatin has no fats, but it has no mineral salts or vitamins either. It is, indeed, about as close to being no food at all as any food can possibly get.

West German Surplus Post's Sharp Increase

By Sarah K. Mero

FRANKFURT, Jan. 25 (AP-DJ) — The West German trade surplus rose in December to 4.221 billion marks, its second-highest level of 1977, the Federal Statistics Office reported today.

The November surplus on merchandise trade was 3.08 billion morks and the surplus in December, 1976, was 3,252 billion marks ervers were caught off-guard by the surprisingly high December total, as market esti-mates had placed the figure within the 3-billion to 4-billion-mark range. The trade surplus hit a 1977 peak of 4.808 billion marks in October.

The December figures brought the trade surplus for 1977 to 38416 billion marks, up 11.4 per cent from 34.469 billion marks in 1976. The current account—comprising trade, services and transfers—posted a preliminary sur-plus of 8.114 billion marks in 1977, down 4 per cent from 8.455 billion marks in 1976. It showed a preliminary surplus of 2.8 billion marks in December, up from 1.355 billion marks in November and also up from 1.094 billion marks in the year-earlier month.

Economists said that seasonal considerations accounted in part for the sharp monthly rise in the trade surplus, as exporters sought to get orders booked before yearend. Exports rose 8 per cent in the month to 25.425 billion marks from November, more than double the rate of increase in imports. Imports rose by nearly 4 per cent to 21.214 billion marks from the previous month.

Pressure on Dollar Despite the seasonal factors, economists and foreign exchange dealers alike expressed surprise at the size of the December rise. On the foreign exchange market, the news resulted in heavy pressure on the dollar which dipped as low es 2.0990 in Frankurt.

According to a chief foreign exchange dealer, the December results only underlined the feet that the recent revaluation of the mark against the dollar has not en effective in reducing the German trade bulge. He said that only heavy Bundesbank support for the U.S. fund today kept the self-off within bounds. Economists say, however, that the impact of the rising mark will begin to be felt in 1978, as Germany's exports become less competitive in world markets.

Rising domestic demand is also expected to boost imports in the current year. Economists expect the impact to be felt most sharply in the export-intensive machinemanufacturing substry and less so in the plant installation sec-tor, where know-how and prompt delivery outweigh cost factors. They explained that in the short-term Germany's imports denominated in foreign currency, cost less in terms of marks while exports, denominated in marks. ara not affected. Thus, the volume of imports can exceed that of exports even while the cost of imports declines, mainly because of the rising value of the mark.

Analysts said that the 11.4-per-cent yearly rise in the trade surplus came as no surprise. Since mid-year, the rate of increase in exports has exceeded that of imports, after growing at mostly the same rate in the first half. During 1977, exports rose 6.5 per cent to 273.537 billion marks, while imports were up by 5.8 per cent to 235,109 billion marks.

In the fourth quarter, however, exports rose by 6 per cent from nearly twice the rate of increase of imports. .

Forecast for Year

In its report on the economy for 1978 released today, the government forecast a 5-per-cent real rise in exports in 1978, following a 4.6-per-cent real rise in 1977. It also projected a 3.5-percent real growth rate for the gross national product in 1978, up from the preliminary 2.5-percent rise last year.

The report is based on the assumption that self-sustained economic growth will be fueled by higher domestic demand as well as ricing exports, the gov-

Fund Managers 'Beat the Market'

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (AP-DJ).-Few professional managers at banks and insurance com-panies can boast about making money in the 1977 stock market decline, but many believe they had a good year, nonethele

The resson: By one of the few available aspres, more of these investment managers "beat the market" in 1977 then have done so for some time, Among 161 puoled equity funds, eccounting for more than $14 billion in stock investments, 106 either ended the year with smaller losses than Standard & Poor's 500-stock index or, in the case of 18 funds, were up for the year.

This picture of investment results for the pooled funds, used by banks and knauvers in manag-ing part of their clients' pension-fund accounts, emerges from a preliminary survey by Rogers, Casey & Benksdale, a Standord, Conn., financial consultant to pension funds. It is a condensed rsion of a more detailed report being prepared

In addition to pooled equity funds, the data covers 142 pooled fixed-income funds with assets of $6.4 billion. Among the latter, more than 10 per cent outperformed the Salomon Brothers high-grade bond index last year.

"It was a year in which diversification, flexibility in raising cash reserves, and stock selection outside the S & P-500 and among the smaller companies within the ender paid off for managers," says Edgar Banksdale of the consult-

Some of the better gains in last year's fourth quarter and for the full year were recorded by pooled equity funds that moved 25 per cent, 35 per cept or even more of assets out of stocks and into cash or short-term investments. "This kind of switch is substantial for pension accounts," says Mr. Barksdale, "but there has been an increasing willingness to raise cash reserves."
In assessing their own relative performance, money managers were going up against declines in the S & P-500, adjusted for dividends, of 7.2 per cent for the full year and 0.1 per cent in the fourth quarter. The best 1977 equity fund result in the Rogers Casey sample was turned in by a $5-million fund managed by Guardian Insurance & Annuity Co., New York City, up 7.9 per cent; the worst was by a $42-million fund of U.S. Trust Co. of New York, off 12.6 per cent,

Despite the relatively good marks for a majority of pooled funds last year, the managers' results for longer periods still remain well below average. Only one in five bank and insurance pooled equity funds has matched or exceeded the 2.8per-cent annual total return of the S & P-500 over the nine years since year-end 1968. The split is about the same over the past three, five and seven years—about 80 per cent of the funds leg behind the S & P returns.

In the fixed-income sector, all but a handful of the bank and insurers pooled funds did better last year than the 1.7-per-cent return registered by Salomon Brothers highgrade bond index. A $61-million fund managed by Pacific Motual Life, Newport Beach, Calif., led the fixed-income pack with a 7.9-per-cent gain. Over the past nine years, about haif the funds matched or exceeded the 6.4-per-cent average amount return of the

Suspension to Be Temporary

By Colleen Sullivan

WASHINGTON, Jap. 25 (WP). -The Commodity Futures Trading Commission today took the first step toward an eventual temporary suspension of dealer end London commodity options sales in the United States.

The five commissioners unanimously voted to direct the staff to prepare a suspension proposal together with a Federal Register notice by the end of this week. The notice is to give the public and commodity industry 30 days in which to comment on the proposal before the CFTC takes

At the crowded, open hearings offic chairman William Bagley stressed that neither the session nor the suspension proposal were a reaction to the recent scandal surrounding the shutdown of Lloyd, Carr & Co. and the arrest of its president, Alan Abrahams, eliss James Carr.

Licyd, Carr allegedly bilked customers out of $25 million to $27 million in fraudulent London commodity options sales in the past year through artificially inflated mark-ups on the premiums and by "bucketing," which is the pocketing of the customers' funds on sales which are never executed at the exchange.

The CFTC had refused to register the firm or its principals to operate and was enmeshed in half a dozen administrative and court proceedings in the past 17 months in an attempt to put it Today Mr. Bagley said the CPTC had scheduled the session on options policy weeks ago to discuss the second half of its proposed regulations for a pilot program of trading in U.S. commodity options on exchanges here. In early 1977 the commission approved the first part of the options regulations.

National publicity and criticisms of the agency's apparent inability to cope with the widespread fraud in London options led the commissioners to propose a temporary suspension of the London sales. The suspension would permit the agency to beef up its enforcement and investigative staffs and to minimize any negative spillover effect the London sales scandals might have on the domestic program. The suspension proposal approved by the commissioners was presented by vice-chairman John Department of Employment.

• The beginning of the pilot program of domestic commodity cptions trading on U.S. exchanges.

How Chemical Bank can help you protect yourself against today's currencies and tomorrow's headlines.

The difference between a profit and a loss can be dictated solely by your exposure in foreign currencies.

Here's how Chemical Bank's Foreign Exchange Advisory Service eliminates much of the risk.

The fluctuation of foreign currencies, even within the joint float, can be risky. Its complexity is forcing financial officers to look more and more towards outside help in managing their foreign exchange exposure.

Chemical Bank's Foreign Exchange Advisory Service (FEAS) provides regular service and concrete information when needed to help protect your company from foreign currency losses. That's why more than 90 major corporations worldwide have found a solution with Chemical Bank.

You can find a solution, too. The FEAS can be tailored to your needs. There are three basic phases:

Consulting:

Our consultant staff in Brussels, London, and New York is the largest and most successful anywhere. The most versatile too. A mix of international accountants, economists and treasury managers.

As a team, they offer the expected knowledge, expertise and up-to-the-minute awareness. You won't get broad, generalized opinions from them. They will suggest precisely what to hedge and what to leave uncovered.

Eurohedge, It's unique.

Eurohedge is the Foreign Exchange Advisory Service's computer model. It offers you instant testing of alternatives in hedging your position.

It comes via computer time-A terminal no bigger than a portable typewriter sits in your offices. It gives you access to Eurohedge.

You feed in foreign currency receivables and payables and other exposure data. (Don't worry, no one but you has access to it).

We feed in currency exchange rate projections. You can modify them as you wish.

Then it simulates different strategies such as forward coverage, spot coverage, leading or lagging, and no action. Instantly, you get a cost analysis of each alternative. After tax.

For sophisticated insight, there simply isn't anything else like it.

Information

Regularly, you will receive numerical projections for 26 currencies covering the next 3, 6, 9 and 12 months, plus an in-depth analysis of the pertinent economic, political and psychological factors affecting that outlook. You're also supplied with a constantly updated international data base of economic and financial indicators.

These are just a few of the ways FEAS can help you and your company.

To find out how the Chemical Bank Foreign Exchange Advisory Service can tailor this package to your needs, call Waldo M. Abbot at 512.50.04 in Brussels. Or phone or write any office listed below.

TRANSATLANTIC BLUES

By Wilfrid Sheed. Robbins-Dutton. 312 pp. $9.95.

in Wilfrid Sheed's ninth and "Transatiantic novel, Blues." Monty Chatworth-"The one and only. The conscience of television, Mr. Literacy"—is on a transatiantic flight from New York to London, having just picked up most of the prizes in the public affairs category at the latest Emmy Awards ceremony. Now, well-lubricated with celebratory scotch, he is seized with a desire to make his first confession in 10 years. This sacrament, though Monty has long ago left the Roman Catholic Church (if he was ever really in it), he still regards with such longing—at least for the way it was in the days before Vatican II—that he is toying with the ides of opening "a string of confessionals across the country, like Fred Astaire dance studios, where you can speak your piece to genuine Monty Chaiworth priests who miss their end of it being the ears and mouth of God for a night."

Anyway, in this state of inebriated spiritual distress, Monty lurches from passenger to pas-senger in both first and tourist class, offering each the chance to hear him and give him penance. Finally, finding no takers, or none that will take him seriously, he settles for another little black box a tape recorder; Father Sony, as he addresses it—and proceeds to speak the balance of the novel. It is a powerful series of scenes in which this introduction unfolds, black comedy at its very pitchiest. Chatworth must have awful things to tell, we think, as we settle back for what will surely be a joyride through hell.

What in fact do these things turn out to be? Monty is gully of fraudulence, he tells Father Sony. His internationally famous television persons is the exquisite end product of an assembly line along which mimicries, pretenses and outright hies have been slapped together.

Having been raised on both sides of the Atlantic by old-line English Roman Catholic parents who could not make up their minds whether they hated England or America more, he feels a genuine product neither, and so has long since mastered the art of playing the tough American to the English and the polished Englishman to Americans. Also, he has misled women, abandoned the survivors of his family, betrayed his genuine origins, and cheated

A. we could savor the distinct Sheed wit, which has ran before bitten quite so inclus But because of the natura Monty's confession, we are fo ed to spend a lot of time + close to him. And he is a & in genuine agony, with the derstandable dilemma that a: Roman Catholic in England, an English child in America as an American-educated stud at Oxford, he never does to helong and is virtually for to resort to pretense and iden masquerading. In a very way, we come to sympathise the fellow.

And what in fact has he that most of us wouldn't do un similar circumstances? As of his several voices needles is the end of the book, "That a thoroughly mediocre co sion, my son. As far as I tell, your sins sound depressing average. Perhaps that's worst of it. Stringing a girls along, as men have doing since the dawn of Lying, faking, pretending, one sin, really. Tour de Spain Still Imperiled

BILBAO, Spain, Jan. 25 (Reuters).-Plans are going ahead for the 1978 Tour of Spain cycling race, but financial difficulties that have threatened the event have not been resolved, the organizers said here.

Television has been the main source of income for recent tours, but Spanish television's 1978 budget was cut severely by the government, forcing it to reduce sports coverage.

This year's tour, which ranks behind only the Tour de France and the Giro d'Italia in the cycling calendar, is scheduled to be run from April 25 to May

The race, starting in Gijon, will be split into 19 stages, covering more than 3,000 kilometers. Unlike previous years, competitors will not cycle through the seaside resorts of southern Spain but will stay in the more mountainous northern region

Organization the Secret to Cowboys' Success

DALLAS (NYT). - The 2,500 black books line a complete wall and part of a bacement in the Dellas Cowboys' offices off the North Central Expressway. They can tell you the size, speed and character of every pro footbell prospect for the last 18 years. They also are one reseon why the Cowboys have not had a horing season in the National Pootball League since 1966. Organization is the name of the game with the Cowboys, from the football team to the front office. And if Dallas is the IEM of pro football, with its econputerised operation and the seemingly cold deteched demeanor exach Tom Landry on the sidelines, the Cowboys earlie to stay one step shead of other rivals in the NFL's curve of

In the delicate area of labor relations, for example, Gil Brandt, the vice-president of personnel development, now checks the blockythm patterns of Cowboy players before scheduling contract negotiations for a particular day.

Brandt, who has been with the Cowboys since they joined the NFL as an expansion franchise in 1860, began computing himbetism patterns last year. All except one of the Cowpoy players are under contract; The Cowboys court talent long

The Cowboys mad their newspaper, Dallas Cowboys Weekly, to 200 trainers because, in Brandt's words, "guys are always banging around the training rcom, and it's a pretty good way of reaching a lot of people you're trying to reach."

Busy on Other Fronts

But the Cowboys also cultivate relationships with college coaches, eening congratulatory letters to all new coaches before their first Last fall, they sent a giant blue Comboy banner to David Paterno, the son of Penn State coach Joe Paterno, after David was hospitalized.

Brazzlit, a one-time baby photographer in Milwankee, even visited with the 7-year-old son of Frank Meloney during the Syracuse Pittsburgh game last year as a favor to the Syracuse coach. "I just wanted you to know that the public relations of the Cowboys is unparalleled in profes-sional sports," Maloney later wrote Brank, who sent an old helmet to the boy. "My young son - Mike, has a No. 1 team and t is not Syrecuse or Michigan

None of the Cowboys' public relations insolatery, which inchides promoting their popular group of cheerlesders, would be worth the investment if Dallas's won-lost record were abyemal But the team has won the Super Bowl and unlike some Wall Street companies, the Dallas stock is strong and uising, with 23 of the 43 players in their third year or less of pro football.

Trust in the System.

The Cowboys' ability to win with their own is deeply moted and reflects strength and faith in the eystem. Deltes has no players who were obtained through toades on its roster, yet still at has wound up with two No. 1 pieks and a No. 2 choice in three of the last four college drafts.

Dallas does not spend needlessly. Last year, while the Wash-ington Redskins shelled out $440,-000 to protect players on the in-jured reserve list, the Cowboys' total expenditure was $104,000.

Image Important

The Cowboys are image-conscious. Members of the media are driven to airports after home games to catch planes, players travel in costs and ties, and scouts are warned not to stand in line and devour food in college press boxes. The Cowboys do not draft by computer alone. One reason they chose Glenn Carano, a rookie quarterback from Nevada-Las Vegas, in the second round was because they had done business with Carano's father, a lawyer from Reno. Branck recalled that Lerry Brinson a 225-mound freeagent running back from Florida, was a little-used wishbone fullback who once ran the 100 in 9.5 in high school. Brinson did well as a rookie this season.

No players from Notre Dame, ern California or Grambling are on the Cowboys. But there are more athletes from Stanford, "Harvard of the West," then from any other school.

Cattles of the Cowboys contend that the chib is too concerned with computers, imagery and paychological testing. Dissent is not tolerated, and wee to those who daire, they stress. Instead of training a cadre of interpreters with solid backgrounds in politics, economics and other pertinent subjects, as other major countries do, the United States downgrades interpreting as a diplomatic specialty.

Behind the Anonymity of the U.S. Interpreter

By Bill Drummond

WASHINGTON—In a typical dinlomatic. scene, the interpreter is a faceless bit player hovering at a world figure's elbow. Although he has many times to speak, the interpreter's name is not destined for the history books except when he blunders.

Almost overnight, Steven Seymour, President Carter's interpreter during his topover in Warmaw Dec. 29, became the best known and probably the most notorious-interpreter in the world. When Mr. Capter told the Polish people that he understood their "desires for the future," Mr. Seymour used a Polish word compoting sexual desire, making it "lusts for the

The incident pointed up what some State Department officials are as a serious structural defect to U.S. diplomacy: The United States is remarkably weak when it comes to language interpreting.

Instead of training a cadre of interpreters with solid backgrounds to politics, economics and other pertinent subjects, as other major countries do, the United States downgrades interpreting as a diplomatic

It relies heavily on part-time interpreters and sometimes lets foreign governments supply interpreters for joint sessions, even in sensitive discussions.

And, sources said, there have been times when top U.S. billicials did not trust American interpreters enough to let them sttend secret discussions with foreign leaders.

Berlin Talks

An interpreting alipup can be cousis!, as attested to by an American official who participated in talks with the Sovies Union over Berlin several years ago. For example, he said, one U.S. interpreter was unaware that American officials never referred to "West Berke" or "East Be and did so a number of times. The official U.S. policy was that Berlin was one city. There are other dimensions to the prob-

• The State Department hierarchy traditionally sees interpreters as "service personnel" in almost the same category as building maintenance men, some longtime, government interpreters complain. They say that interpreters are seldem brought into the substantive planning for a major trip or conference.

. The State Department has a staff of 17 full-time interpreters. It relies heavily on free-lance interpreters under contract for occasional use, which was the case with Mr. Seymour, though he was the first free-lancer ever assigned to a president,

"In Angio-American culture, there is a bias against foreign languages and a bias against those who speak foreign languages finently," Doneld Barnes, chief of the State Depentment interpreting branch, said in a recent interview.

Over the years, the State Department has not placed great importance on the interpreter's role, in part because it generally has not seemed necessary.

English is a world language and is frequently employed to diplomatic contacts. For example, when the United States holds talks with representatives of Burms, the Burmese prefer to use English. Unite the Germans or the Dutch, future U.S. diplomats are not forced to gain a through grasp of several foreign languages as part of their secondary schooling.

"All foreign countries do a better job of interpreting then we do," said a seasoned U.S. Foreign Service officer.

Women Astronauts? Too Close for Comfort

Frank Borman says that women astronauts are okay, as long as you don't have to sit too close too them for a long time. former astronaut praised the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its recent selection of new astronauts, which included several women. But he said there were good reasons women were not selected for earlier flights when the spaceships were smaller. "I think it would have been detrimental to spend two weeks in the space the size of the front of a Chevette or a Volkswagen with a woman," Borman, who is in Detroit for a business meeting, said "It was tough enough with Lovell" Borman, James Lovell ir, and Wil-Ham Anders were on the Apollo-8 mission which circled the moon in December, 1968. Borman is now president of the Miamibased Eastern Air Lines.

British soccer ster George Best 31, has been married to his longtime girl friend, Angela Mac-Denald-James, 24, in Las Vegas. They were married at the Candielight Wedding Chapel on the Las Vegas Strip. Following the wedding, they went to Caesar's Palace hotel for a reception. Best, who formerly played for Manchester United, is now a member of the Los Angeles Aztecs team. His wife is secretary to top singer Cher.

Mark Goodman, the young American who says that he plans to marry his step-grandmother, 77, celebrated his 21st birthday with her in London, but said that the day's events would not incember, he was quoted as saying that his hirthday would be their wedding day. But when the day arrived, he said, "All I am planning is to have a happy birthday."

Evangelist Oral Roberts says that he is going to give Tulsa, Okla, a new hospital whether it wants it or not. Roberts, cele-brating his 60th birthday, broke ground for the proposed $100-million medical complex and said, This is the pinnacle of my Seventy-seven white doves, symbolic of the decision last year to build the 777-room. facility, were released in the air during the ground breaking. Roberts said that he is confident that the medical center will be built despite opposition from the business community. A certificate of need that would allow construction has not yet been approved. Asked for his answer the critics of the center, Robe said: "I don't answer. I j. build." Opposition is based contentions that Tuka alre has more hospital beds than needs. But Roberts has said th the constituency for the cen will be drawn from his follow around the world.

The New York Police Depa ment has bulletproof chipboard nine of them. They are said to capable of stopping a speed bullet fired from four inc. away and have been issued on experimental basis. If they would, the department plans to i them for all 3,750 patrol cars." clipboards, made primarily fiberglass, are an eighth of inch thick, 15 inches long and inches wide. They sell for each. New York police bought; first batch after a research ar yais concluded that the major of confrontations occur at i than five feet away and mainly arm's length revealing the n' for a piece of cover that an o cer can carry conveniently use swiftly.
